ciples of the god of beer. It has its own club room with a grandly hospitable central table around which the members sit. Incased in a glass box and hung upon the wall is a buge silver tankard to be filled by every member caught talking politics or presented with a girl baby by his wife. To be the father of a boy costs a member the price of a keg of beer for the club. The members are a mixed company of capitalists and wage workers & CO. who meet once a week and on all extraordi-nary occasions of their own devising. They tell stories, bring the women, and dance, sing and drink beer. Another notable east side organization is the Pfalzer Harmonie club, formed of men and women from the Rhenish vineyard country. It will be "sausage time" in a few weeks, and "sausage time" is their time for a grand festival transplanted from the old ountry. The new pigs of the year are then fit for translation into sausage meat, and, at the same time, the grapes have all been gathered for the wine presses-two important reasons for rejoicing, they think. A grand ball is given. They come to it from far and near. Some are retired men of wealth, some are mechanics, some are laborers, some are shopkeepers, some are great merchants, but they are all equal on this festal night. While the fiddlers are tuning up all repair to a shooting gallery garlanded with paper roses, and those women and those men who desire to do so shoot to see which shall be crowned, the hest markswoman as queen and the best marksman as king—each to reign the ensuing twelve months. silk.-Providence Journal. The Photographer and the Sitter. A photographer asked a gentleman to sit for his likeness, and the gentleman assented upon condition that he should pose himself as he chose. The photographer agreed, provided that he might pose the sitter for another like-ness. The sitter adjusted himself in a position which seemed to him natural and comfortable, and the negative was taken. Then the photographer adjusted the sitter, and pres-ently showed the result of the two attempts. "That is ridiculous," said the sitter, putting one aside, "but this is very good." "Yes," said the photographer; "the first is your pose, the last is mine." The sitter smiled good naturedly as if struck by a thought. "Perhaps," said the photographer, gently, "a man may be assumed to understand his own "It is just what I was thinking," replied the sitter, urbanely; and upon reaching home he threw into the fire a letter ad vising an editor to leave out a good man
